SLAVERY IN AMERICA AND THE WORLD

Slavery in America and the World: History, Culture, and Law brings together essential legal materials relating to the history of slavery in the United States and the English-speaking world. This includes every federal, state, and colony statute on slavery, as well as all reported state and federal cases on the subject. In this database, slavery-related case coverage extends into the 20th century because long after slavery ended, courts were still resolving issues emanating from the practice.

This library contains hundreds of pamphlets and books written about slavery, whether defending it, attacking it, or simply analyzing it. Also included are every English-language legal commentary on slavery published before 1920, including many essays and articles in obscure, hard-to-find journals from the U.S. and elsewhere. Additionally, there are more than a thousand pamphlets and books on slavery from the 19th century. Moreover, this database includes many modern histories of slavery and a section containing all modern law review articles on the subject.

FROM the VAULT

Spotlight on the Seventh-day Adventist Heritage and Apocalyptic Studies Collection

In Memoriam describes the funeral services of Mrs. Ellen G. White at Battle Creek, Michigan, held on July 24, 1915. This booklet was donated to McKee Library by the McKee family. It belonged to Mrs. King, Ruth McKee's mother and Ellsworth McKee's grandmother. The document is on permanent display in McKee Library's E.G. White Study Room and available digitally on KnowledgeExchange.

About the Collection

The work is part of McKee Library's Seventh-day Adventist Heritage and Apocalyptic Studies Collection, which houses books on Adventist heritage, specifically those pertaining to the study of the books of Daniel and Revelation. Included in the collection are several first-edition books written by Ellen G. White as well as a copy of A New Concordance of the Holy Scriptures by John Butterworth that belonged to Joseph Bates. Additions to this collection come from librarian acquisitions, deaccessioned items from the library's general collection, or from patron donations.
